Laurel Buchanan www.laurelbuchanan.com

Laurel spent much of her Southern California youth outdoors with her family at the coast, in the mountains, and at the family ranch in the foothills of the Sierras. Since 2001 Laurel has made her home in Oregon where she has focused on landscape oil painting. Her style of art is based on observation of nature, and is painterly and impressionistic. She has a chromatic palette, influenced by the early California Impressionists, and she paints with an amply loaded brush, creating a subtle and beautiful texture in her impasto paintings. She has a degree in art from the California State University of Long Beach, has numerous awards and honors, and was juried into the 2018 American Impressionist Society national show.

Eric Jacobsen www.jacobsenfineart.com

Born and raised in New England, Eric studied fine art at the Lyme Academy of Fine Arts in Old Lyme, CT, from 1991-1995 where he received extensive training in the tradition of drawing and painting from life. Jacobsen is inspired by the amazing beauty that he sees in nature in both landscapes and still lifes. He completes paintings in plein air, on location, and in his studio. Eric looks for strong compositions in nature to portray accurately with as little detail as possible to maintain the strength of the piece as a whole and capture mood. Jacobsen has won numerous awards and has shown in galleries and painting events nationwide. He is a master teacher and conducts workshops in several states. He was juried into the 2018 American Impressionist Society and Oil Painters of America national shows.

Pamela Clafin www.claflinart.com

Pamela was introduced to oil painting during a year's study in Norwegian, Russian and German Rosemaling at 30 years of age. She moved to painting on canvas the following year when introduced to Master Painter, Delbert Gish, who taught the traditional Russian style of painting at the academy in Kiev, Russia. Pamela studied with him for several years and taught workshops. She worked as a graphic artist for five years and then moved to Bend, OR, where she founded and operated Mockingbird Gallery from 1989 to 2007. Upon selling the gallery, Clafin dedicates her time to full time painting. Her goal is to preserve scenes of nature...its inhabitants, buildings, floral and fauna...for the public to behold and enjoy. She was recently juried into the High Desert Museum's Art In The West and the Wallowa Arts Festival Shows.

Each of these artists have relocated to live in Prineville in the past 4 years. The three are currently exhibiting in Oregon State University's 150th Land Grant Celebration Art Show at the Giustina Gallery, in the LaSalle Stewart Center, Corvallis, OR, for the month of October.
